phants have been extremely jealous of the attention he receives, and they have evidently been planning some means to lower the big beast's dignity.

On Saturday afternoon there was a fearful uproar in the elephant house, and for a few moments the keeper feared that one of the brutes had become liberated. Rushing to the cage where the elephants are confined he found that all three of them were safe, but Bolivar presented a most ridiculous and disreputable appearance. He was standing alone in the rear of the cage, roaring as loud as possible, and was covered from his feet to his backbone with cement. Empress and Jenny were standing out of his reach just commencing to give him another coat of the brown, powdery plaster when the keeper rescued him.

For some days past workmen have been engaged in enlarging the cage in which they level the brick wall which they cany tools or anything else within reach of the brutes' trunks. On Saturday they completed the brick wall which they were building, and left their tools and soveral barrels of dry cement near the wood partition.

Empress and Jenny have been most afternoon to test the wonderful echo. The Colonel found, on getting home, that in the heat of the discussion he had claimed more than the cits justified. Determined not to be beaten, he called his Irish labour, "Pat," says he, "some gentlemen are coming home with me to-morrow after-coming home with me to-morrow after-coming home with me to-morrow after we arrive, so you can answer back arrive, so you were building, and left their tools and several barrels of dry cement near the wood partition.

Empress and Jenny have been most interested and vigilant spectators of the work, and were especially interested in the use of the shovel and pick-ax. After the workmen had gone on Saturday Empress and Jenny, placing their fore feet on the iron bars of the partition, reached over with their trunks, and while Empress secured a shovel Jenny became the possessor of a pick-ax. They then tried to imitate the workmen, but Jenny, mistaking the pick-ax for a shovel, pushed it over the floor and through the bars, losing it. Empress, thinking she had the pick-ax, best the shovel upon the floor and broke it. They then made another investigation, and found the head of our of the coment barrels out, with nearly a full barrel of dry cement at their disposal.

They cautiously climbed up on the wood partition and, leaning over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive he desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. He appeared dazed for a moment, but, seeing his two companions again climbing up the partition, he set up a most horrid cry. The brute, whose eyes had been filled by the water and cement running off his back, roared and stamped about the cage in a most threatening manner.

laws of Life. Well Dressed, Auss of Life.

I once heard a mother who had been criticised for her personal vanity by a somewhat goesipy neighbor, say that she made it a duty and a pleasure to keep well-dressed, for she was likely at any hour to be called upen to entertain friends whose good opinion was of such consequence that she could not afford to run the risk of having them find her in any but neat and presentable attire. The friends were her husband and children; and she was fully compensated for her care in this direction by their approval and appreciation. To be "well-dressed" was not to her mind an admission of extravagance. Good taste and good planning often stand in place of dollars and cents, and the lady in question was able to dress well on half the cost of her neighbor's wardrobe.

He was the Band.

Philadelphia Press.

Here is a story that has a suspiciously familiar sound to me, although Lean't tell just how many times or by what different people it has been told to me. It comes this time from Mr. Blakely Hall, who writes that the manager of one of the beet known comedy organizations in the country said the other day:

"I'd drifted into a town called Vincennes some time since, and just before the performanc I went under the stage to tell the musicians something about dramatic music. There was a solitary man with a bald head and long chin whiskers slitting on one side of the leader's desk. I asked him where the band was.

"'I'm the band, said the man tersely.

"All of it?"

"All there is of it. The rest is across the street playing at the firemen's ball.

"What do you play?"

"Cornet."

"Well," It ald, "I have no doubt you are a very good player."

"No, I'm not, he said frankly. "If I were any good I'd be across the street.

Colonel Ogeechee belong to the lost tribes, nor have they has a very remarkable echo on his place any mysterious connection with the miles from this city; one, in fact, would clearly repeat whole sentiate centuries ago their forefathers, fly-gentlemen to whom this assertion ing by sea from a country in the north, ing by sea from a country in the florth, were shipwrecked near Kenery Island, and the survivors, seven families, took refuge at Navgoan, homeless, penniless, among strangers, and without the hooks of their law. The date of this hegira is estimated from 1,600 to 2,000 years ago. Since that date the little colony of fourteen souls has grown into a dispersed community of 10,000, not unlike the ordinary Konkan peasantry, but religiously observing the Jewish Sabbath and whatever they can remember of the Mosaical law. They have been hewers of wood and drawers of water to whatever king happened to reign; but they are as much Hebrews to-day as they were two centuries before Christ.

Mr. Chrome Yellerby—"Do you s'pose, said at a gemman ob my complexion would brack his hands on any such job as da? No, sah: coal may do for niggabs, but the Yellerbys only handle a mineral nearer their own color."

The stock market was somewhat more active to-day. First prices were from ½ to ½ per cent lower than last evening 3 gures, and after further losses, in which Missouri Pacific and Lackmanna were the met completions, there was a reaction, which brought most stocks to about the level of the opening figures. The downward movement was soon resumed, however, and toward noon there was more animation and the weak tone became more pronounced with the pressure heaviest against the Orangeors and Coal Stocks, while the Gould shares were for a time well held. Burlington, Rock Jainet, St. pouninent for losses sistained, and the lowest prices were generally reached toward 2 p. m., after which there was a pronounced raily, and most of the losses were regained.
